

Seemühlen Seal

Origin and quality - that's what our seal stands for.

The Seemühlen driftwood comes from the Swiss and Austrian Alps. When the snow melts or during heavy rainfall, it reaches Lake Constance via the tributaries. The waters in this region have a water quality at drinking water level - a decisive factor for the purity and quality of the wood.

Only driftwood from this area is collected by the Seemühlen team directly on site, carefully sorted and professionally dried. After being cut to size, each piece undergoes further checks and is then finished by hand on the lathe. The final step is a finish with natural hard wax - for a long-lasting, silky matt surface.
